Foreword

There is no better manner of ascertaining the character and enterprise of the people in any Community than is found in its business life. Therefore, we firmly believe that one of the most attractive and valuable features is the list of choice announcements in our advertising columns. Consequently we have no hesitation in recommending each and all to the attention and patronage of our guests.

Again we say, "thank you", and hope you spend an enjoyable evening with us, and tell your friends, "We saw your advertisement in the BALL PROGRAM".

Sincerely,
ROGER LaPLANTE, President
HOWARD MANOIAN, Vice President
JOSEPH HEBERT, Secretary
DAVID BOYCE, Treasurer
CHARLES MITCHELL, Sergeant at Arms
FRANCIS SULLIVAN, Chaplain

AN INTRODUCTION

The Derry Police Relief Association, Inc. was founded in 1932 by a group of Derry police officers interested in the promotion of law and order, and better enforcement of existing laws.

The purpose of the Association is to care for sick and needy members by providing sick benefits. The Association also contributes to civic activities, which are beneficial to the town of Derry.

In recent years the Association has sponsored Christmas parties and co-sponsored Halloween parties for children in the Derry area, plus contributing to the Christmas lighting program. Recognizing the need for youth activities, each year the organization sponsors a Little League baseball team.

The Police Ball and the advertiser's book are the only methods used by the Association to raise funds and we extend our thanks to you for contributing to the success of this Ball, so that we may continue to support these worthwhile projects.

HISTORY OF DERRY AND LAW ENFORCEMENT

In the beginning, what is now known as Derry was called Nutfield by those who settled here on account of the abundance of nut trees which was harvested and taken back to Newburyport to trade for goods to last through the winter.

As progress continued, Nutfield was changed to Londonderry to satisfy the large number of settlers from Northern Ireland. Later the town split, religiously and politically, and became Derry and Londonderry.

The law at that time was mostly the preacher of the First Church and the elders. One of the crimes of the day was failure to attend Sunday services. Punishment for said crime was to spend some time in the stocks or pillory. These devices were built in a public place so that those incarcerated could be viewed by the population. The first common in Derry was by the brook, now known as West Running Brook, on a farm owned by McAllister on Route 28 Bypass. The original lots were long and narrow so that everyone had access to the water and firewood.

The first pound was built in East Derry on the Hampstead Road, a small stone structure which served as a place to keep wandering animals until the owner could claim them. This was not at all like the original common where all animals were kept to graze, watched by a single person (usually a young boy), while the rest of the townspeople worked on clearing their land and working at their trades.

Other than the nuts, the first harvest included the Irish white potato on the so-called White-Murdock farm. The story is that the family who brought the seed stock to this country settled in Dracut and Derry. Each planted their seed in the spring, but, by harvest time, those in Dracut were merchants and didn't realize the harvest had to be dug out of the ground, while in Derry, the Scots helped their Irish neighbors by digging the harvest out of the ground for them. Thus, the claim that Derry is the birthplace of the Irish white potato in the New World.

As the farms grew and the farms prospered, it was only natural that the Irish became the keepers of the law, since they were considered the minority at the time. They were often given the job because the others felt they were not doing anything else anyway.

Then Matthew Thornton came to Derry from Northern Ireland as an indentured servant. In time, he educated himself as a physician and practiced in Derry. He was to become what could be considered the first police chief, as he headed up a group known as the Committee for Safety. This group was formed prior to the American Revolution and played an important part in the conflict which followed.

Thornton wrote most of the New Hampshire Declaration of Independence years before our Congress did, and many of his words and phrases appear in the National document, though he received no recognition for them. He was the last delegate to sign the historic paper because he traveled to Philadelphia via horse and carriage, nursing a foot affected by the gout.

One of the reasons given in those days for Derry being known as, "The first in a fight and the last to leave," was the Irish influence on the populace of the community. The fact that they loved a donnybrook, coupled with a 1400-year disagreement with the English (which continues today), the Derry Militia became a force to be reckoned with wherever they went. Of course, no one ever accused them of being overly intelligent. A diary from Charlestown tells of the demise of the first one killed during the Revolution by trying to catch a cannonball much the way we would try to catch a raw egg tossed by someone at a distance. The diary didn't say that Washington was offering a bounty for every cannonball retrieved and turned in, or that it was a common practice by Minutemen of the day to use their bedclothes to catch the missiles hurled by the high trajectory mortars. It did mention that his last words were, "They have not yet cast the ball which can kill me." Of course, it is not necessary to reveal his surname which was as Irish as Paddy's pig. The writer does make some reference to the departed as being the same as Hogan's goat.

In more recent years the police force has undergone a lot of changes, from horseback to automobiles. Until a few years ago, the only cruiser was the personal vehicle of the chief. Also in recent memory of some of our citizens, the chief patrolled the streets himself. With the onset of the telephone, an ingenious device was rigged up to let the man on the street know when a call came into the police station. The telephone operators had a switch to turn on the light suspended over the street in front of the bank which was the signal that a call had been placed to the police department.

At one time, the entire department was a chief and a group of specials who assisted, either on call or on schedule.

Nowadays, with computers and radios and all of the sophisticated equipment, I wonder just what the citizens of colonial Derry would think of it all.

Law Enforcement Code of Ethics

As a Law Enforcement Officer, my fundamental duty is to serve mankind; to safeguard lives and property; to protect the innocent against deception, the weak against oppression or intimidation, and the peaceful against violence and disorder; and to respect the Constitutional rights of all men to liberty, equality and justice.

I will keep my private life unsullied as an example to all; maintain courageous calm in the face of danger, scorn, or ridicule; develop self-restraint; and be constantly mindful of the welfare of others. Honest in thought and deed in both my personal and official life, I will be exemplary in obeying the laws of the land and the regulations of my department. Whatever I see or hear of a confidential nature or that is confided to me in my official capacity will be kept ever secret unless revelation is necessary in the performance of my duty.

I will never act officiously or permit personal feelings, prejudices, animosities or friendships to influence my decisions. With no compromise for crime and with relentless prosecution of criminals, I will enforce the law courteously and appropriately without fear or favor, malice or ill will, never employing unnecessary force or violence and never accepting gratuities.

I recognize the badge of my office as a symbol of public faith, and I accept it as a public trust to be held so long as I am true to the ethics of the police service. I will constantly strive to achieve these objectives and ideals, dedicating myself before God my chosen profession... law enforcement.
